Farm Marketing
Prison Cuts
Melodrama Short

Marketing, President Jones of the University of Arkansas told a visiting day audience at the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station here yesterday, is the greatest single obstacle facing the state's farmers.

The remark was old — this was the 21st annual visiting day at the local station — but its truth is ever new.

Farm marketing problems are solved in one of two ways — either a great boom happens to build up big cities close by, improving the demand for agricultural products; or the farmers take matters into their own hands, set up research and shipping and marketing groups, and thus make the most out of markets that exist in distant places under highly competitive conditions.

Texas and California have had population booms, but farmers in both states were among the nation's leaders in promoting modern agricultural marketing systems. Booms are strictly a matter of chance; but organized marketing methods are something every farm community can utilize as a self-help program.

Judith Coplon was found guilty of spying on her own country for Russia by a federal court jury in Washington yesterday. She will serve a prison sentence of between 40 months and 10 years.

We hear much nowadays about encroachments on personal liberty, and "witch-hunting" by political administrators. But none of this has been more than a mere shadow.

Her trial had the melodramatic flavor of a Saturday night cops-and-robbers motion picture — secret papers, foreign agents, and what have you.

But her pronouncement of a prison sentence cuts this play stuff short.

The cold facts are: if you are walking around our country with some papers they had better not be the secret files of the government.

For this, even a democracy puts its citizens in prison.

In most other countries you would be shot.

Third Polio Ward to Be Opened

Little Rock, July 2 — (AP) — A third Little Rock hospital will open an isolation ward in the state's fight against poliomyelitis.

The institution, St. Vincent's infirmary, which announced that it expected the ward — equipped to care for about 25 patients — to be ready next week.

Two wards at University hospital have furnished the state's only isolation facilities, but Arkansas Baptist hospital here was to open an isolation ward today. A number of eastern Arkansas victims — and the disease has been most serious in that section — have gone to John Gaston hospital at Memphis.

Spread of the disease had slowed down somewhat in today, but health officials were cautious of expressing hope that the peak had been reached. The disease might be only "temporary." Other points out that usually peak of the disease was later in the summer, anyhow. Latest state health department computation gave a statewide total of 141 cases this year.

Eight children have died — the latest on Thursday.

Arkansas Farm Prices Drop Slightly

Little Rock, July 2 — (AP) — Average prices received by Arkansas farmers on June 28 were down less than one per cent from those of May 15, the crop reporting service said today.

Level of prices received for all farm products is 20 per cent lower than a year ago and 13 per cent below September, 1946, the service said.

British Railmen Agree to Halt 'Slow Down'

London, July 1 — (AP) — Leaders of 460,000 British railwaymen have agreed to suspend a "slow down" originally ordered to begin at midnight Sunday.

Minister George Isaacs announced to the house of commons the decision of the national union of railwaymen. The union had ordered the partial work stoppage on June 28 to support demands for wage increases.

The decision to withhold the slow down followed a day of negotiations in which union leaders were warned that the action threatened Britain's economic security.

The workers on Britain's state-owned railway seek wage increase of 10 shillings ($2) a week.

State Payroll Hiked 70% in Only Five Years

By BOB BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Little Rock, July 2 — (UP) — A private research agency reported today that Arkansas's state payroll increased more than 70 per cent during the past five years.

In its monthly bulletin, the Arkansas Public Expenditure Council said that the taxpayers' payroll increased from $1,114,190 in March, 1944, compared with $646,213 in March, 1944.

The increase, the council said, was caused by a 30 per cent hike in the number of employees on the payroll and by a 30 per cent raise in the average salary being paid.

The council reported it found 7,476 persons being paid by the state in March of this year compared with 5,575 five years ago. The 1949 total included 5,593 full-time employees and 1,883 part-time workers.

The total did not include employees paid from cash funds by various colleges and institutions or a large number of state employees paid from federal funds.

Indications were that the total number of workers on the payroll during the fiscal year which started yesterday will be even greater. State Comptroller Lee Roy Beasley said the legislature authorized more than 7,000 full-time jobs. He emphasized that the part-time and hourly-wage workers in the highway and revenue departments were not included. Neither were workers paid from cash funds.

The council reported that during the five-year period, the largest personnel increases occurred in the state department of education, the game and fish commission, the highway department, the military department, the state police, the resources development commission and the university and colleges.

State officials justify most of these hikes by the widely-expanded programs made necessary by postwar adjustments, particularly in education, colleges and the state police.

The council reported "relatively stable employment" in the constitutional offices such as treasurer, secretary of state and auditor.

Legless Girl to Try to Aid Another

Reno, Nev., July 2 — (UP) — One legless "teen-aged girl faces another girl almost her own age today to tell her that the feet are missing from her legs, encased in plaster-casts since a motor boat ran over her this week.

At the same time, 14-year-old Norma Carothers of Topeka, Kan., will try to sell 13-year-old Imogene Witschke of Roseville, Cal., on the idea that she can lead a normal life without her feet.

Neither doctors nor Imogene's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Witschke, had the heart to tell the pretty youngster that her feet were chopped off when the boat ran over her on Lake Tahoe as she swam last Monday.

In the heavy casts, she had no idea that her feet were gone, she thought they had been "sweated back on" and the condition of her severed nerves were such that doctors said she might even believe she could "wiggle" toes that were no longer there.

"She hasn't said anything about the accident since she came to the hospital," her mother said. "I don't believe she realizes yet what happened."

Norma, visiting in Long Beach, Cal., with her mother, offered to break the news to Imogene. Experts believed it might be a good idea to let someone her own age who had suffered the same experience tell her of her loss.

Norma lost her legs in an auto accident two years ago.

"Perhaps," Norma said, "it might help coming from me. I'm willing to give up my vacation to help her."

Mrs. James W. Carothers, Norma's mother, said her daughter has been able to lead an almost normal life since she became accustomed to the artificial legs with which she was fitted after the auto crash.

Meanwhile, the federal government moved against Phil Davis, wealthy Oakland, Calif., automobile dealer whose speedboat overpowered Imogene in Tahoe which is on federal property.

After an extensive investigation in which more than a dozen witnesses were questioned, the coast guard today charged Davis with operating a motorboat "in a reckless and negligent manner so as to endanger life and limb."

The violation carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Approximately 1,500 men participated in the University of Arizona's 17 sports intramural program during 1948-49.

Fate of Young Slayer Now Up to Jury

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent

Roanoke, Va., July 2 — (UP) — The case of handsome Lee Goode Scott, 16-year-old choirboy charged with the murder of his beautiful schoolmate Dana Marie Weaver, goes to a jury today.

Twelve married men, 10 of whom have children of their own, must decide whether young Scott is guilty of "willful, deliberate murder" or of manslaughter committed in a moment of "partial amnesia."

A verdict of first degree murder could carry a sentence of death in the electric chair.

The husky, tanned youth admitted on the witness stand yesterday that he hit Dana Marie with a soft drink bottle and choked her in the kitchen of the Christ Episcopal church parish house on Sunday night, May 7.

But he denied, stoutly and repeatedly, that he meant to kill the blond beauty or that he made any sexual advances toward her.

Young Scott's choked, emotional testimony was the defense's trump card in seeking a manslaughter conviction instead of the first degree murder verdict asked by the state.

Scott's fate was to be handed over to the jury today after the defense and prosecution sung out their cases and Judge Dirk A. Kuyk instructed the jurors on possible verdicts.

First degree murder in Virginia is punishable by death in the electric chair, life imprisonment or a term of not less than 20 years, with the decision up to the jury.

A manslaughter verdict would bring a penalty of one to five years imprisonment.

In between the first degree murder verdict sought by the prosecution and the manslaughter decision asked by the defense is second degree murder, usually described as an unpremeditated crime of passion. It would carry a sentence of not more than 20 nor less than five years in prison.

The youthful defendant underwent an hour and 25-minute ordeal on the stand in his own defense yesterday.

First, under the gentle questioning of Defense Attorney T. Warren Messick, he reviewed his background as a normal youth brought up in a good family and touched on his activities as an Eagle scout, a high school wrestler and a church choir boy and acolyte.

He described his "chance meeting" with Dana Marie at the parish house and said that "something swept over me" when the girl made slurring remarks about one of his best friends.

He said he had only "a hazy memory of what followed, but he remembered that he struck the girl with a bottle and then held her by the throat as she clawed and kicked at him until "she didn't move."

Brand of Logic and One Kind Won't Always Suit Another Everybody Lives By His Own

By HAL BOYLE
New York, July 2 — (AP) — Manhattan snaphots:

Everybody lives by his own brand of logic, and one kind won't necessarily suit another.

There is a waitress in a beanery here who should be in her headway. She really began at 40.

She lives entirely on the tips from patrons, and collects her wages from the boss only once every four years. The last time she asked him for her money he forked over $600.

When a patron inquired why she let her wages pile up for four years, the mousy little plate slinger said:

"Well, when you go out for an evening you want to be able to hold up your own end."

The lady wasn't joking either.

My favorite New Yorker is George ("The Real") McCoy, the best armored man I know against misfortune.

Hard luck can't even dent—let alone break—this back man's fall-staff. George, now in his middle years, was a pioneer sidewalk radio interviewer. He served as an army sergeant overseas, and he and his microphone gave belly laughs to scores of thousands of homesick troops on leave in Algiers and Naples.

Today this chunky, red-faced Irishman probably knows as many people around town as Jim Farley. The radio sports have been fewer in recent years, and George beats a living out of Broadway by driving a cab.

"Every day is a new day to me," he says. "Most people want to live and let live. I want to live and let live."

And in many a mid-town bistrot he's more widely quoted than Shakespeare, Walter Lippmann or Milton Berle. George dislikes stuffed shirts more than anything in the world, and enjoys puncturing them.

"A stuffed shirt," he says, "is just a public bandage on a private infection—or an ulcer that needs curing."

Recently George started driving his hack on Sundays because he figured he could save $30.

"I really take in only $10," he says. "But if I didn't work, I'd spend $10—so that makes $20 on the other hand. If I didn't work, I'd have to borrow the $10. I'd spend $10, altogether, I'm really saving $30."

Currently "the Real McCoy" is worried over the way people in Manhattan are corrupting the "pigeons."

Ex-Resident Takes Own Life in Kansas

Robert E. Hill, aged 27, ended his own life at Great Bend, Kansas, today.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Hill of Fulton were notified today.

He formerly lived at Hope and Homer, La. Details were not immediately known.

He is also survived by his wife, two children, three brothers, James B. Hill of California, Richard L. and B. W. Hill of Fulton and a sister, Mary Hill of Fulton.

The body will be brought to Hope for burial. Arrangements are incomplete.

Masked Riders Violate New Alabama Law

Birmingham, Ala., July 2 — (UP) — Reports were received today that hooded men rode in Jefferson county last night in what could be the first violation of the state's new anti-masking law.

Several residents telephoned the sheriff's office and newspapers that a motorcade of "several cars" with white robes and masked men traveled through the Rock creek area, Dolomite and on Highway 78, near where Mrs. Hugh McDaniel was intimidated three weeks ago.

Developments came rapidly in the Birmingham area's continuing story of mob violence.

1. Another Birmingham suburb was reported "living under the lash."

2. A Jefferson county grand jury gave promise of indicting more than a score of persons who participated in floggings and intimidations.

The Bessemer and Birmingham offices of the county sheriff investigated several reports of masked gangs riding last night. However, deputies said they could find no trace of the men.

The sheriff's office received three calls and the Birmingham Post more than a half-dozen reports of a "flying riders" in the night. Since I can't afford to beat a month ago and some residents said at least a dozen members of their community had felt the lash from masked gangs.

J. R. Henderson admitted to newsmen that his daughter, Mary Alice, was flogged. He said she was hit five times.

Jack Alexander, 38, a tubercular patient twice in a hospital, said he was flogged three times in the last 10 years, and a three-inch strap was used on him "about 10 times." He said all the men were dressed in hoods and robes except the leader, "a Bessemer preacher who prayed several times before and after they flogged me."

Scientists Talk Over Bomb Shelters

Los Angeles, July 2 — (AP) — Your bomb shelter is your future. Scientists here today discussed the future of bomb shelters.

The problem of how to shield civilians from radiation in an atomic explosion may be near solution because of his symposium on the Monte Carlo method, Dr. J. H. Curtiss, chief of the applied mathematics division of the national bureau of standards, said.

The Monte Carlo method, details of which were top secret during the war, is a new way of solving mathematical equations. It recognizes that there are certain elements of chance in figuring where a high-speed missile — or a particle from an exploded atom — will go.

If you were a worker in an atomic bomb factory, you'd have to be shielded from certain tiny but deadly particles of radiation. If scientists can determine in advance where these particles are most likely to hit, they can give you better protection.

The trouble is, these particles don't follow any known pattern but move about at random. By using the Monte Carlo method, scientists hope to "out-guess" the wild particles and predict the paths most of them are likely to take.

If they can do this, the protective shields in atomic energy plants — or bomb shelters of the future — will be more effective.

"In a sense," Dr. Curtiss said yesterday, "Monte Carlo is the story of roulette and atomic energy. Games of chance, like roulette or dice, can be analyzed statistically in accordance with the laws of probability. So, we hope, can the trajectories of radiation particles and other moving objects."

Attending the symposium were representatives of a business-national energy commission, the bureau of standards, and the Rand corporation. The Rand corporation, mere existence of which once was a military secret, is a privately-financed research group currently devoted to government projects.

The three-day conference, which ended yesterday, was held on the University of California's Los Angeles campus.

P. A. B. Widener II's Elmdorf Farm bred six thoroughbred stakes winners during 1948.

One hundred and ninety-two breeders produced 323 horses which were successful in one or more of the 362 stake races run during 1948.

Low School Dean May Be New Justice

Little Rock, July 2 — (AP) — The dean of the University of Arkansas law school may succeed as Arkansas Supreme court justice the man who defeated him for the position.

The Arkansas Gazette predicted today Dr. Robert A. Leflar probably would be appointed by Governor McMath to serve until Dec. 31, 1950, in place of Associate Justice R. W. Robins, who died Thursday.

Governor McMath declined comment. Leflar, who defeated Robins for the justiceship.

Whoever McMath names won't be eligible to run for an elective term at the 1950 general election.

Huge Deficit Brings Demand for Economy

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, July 2 — (UP) — A whopping treasury deficit for the fiscal year just ended, far beyond official estimates, today brought new demands for government economy.

Secretary John W. Snyder announced that the treasury went into the red in fiscal year 1949 by $1,811,440,047. President Truman estimated six months ago that the 1949 deficit would be $600,000,000 a year, or $1,211,000,000.

His earlier critics had expected the red figure to exceed $1,500,000,000. But they fear it will be much more next year.

Federal taxes raised an enormous sum, $38,245,000,000. But it cost $40,000,000 to operate the government, including foreign aid for the 12 months which ended at midnight June 30. The president took the bad news with him when he sailed at 10:30 a. m., EST today aboard the yacht Williamsburg for a July 4 weekend cruise on the lower Potomac.

He planned to devote much of his time to his forthcoming mid-year economic report to congress. In preparation for that study and to discuss preliminary of the 1951 budget, Mr. Truman met yesterday with several cabinet, budget and other aides. The administration charges blame for the big deficit to the Republican tax reduction voted by the 80th congress.

Republicans and some Democrats contend that Mr. Truman is responsible because of what they regard as extravagant government spending.

Wherever the responsibility may lie, the facts are that this rich country has been in the red in all but two of the past 19 fiscal years. The two surplus fiscal years were 1947 and 1948 and the excesses of income over outgo were, respectively, $753,787,000 and $8,419,000.

The last president of the United States who served a full term in the White House without a year or more of treasury deficit was the late Calvin Coolidge, Herbert C. Hoover had two surplus years out of four. FDR never was able to get the treasury out of the red.

Economy minded members of congress said the big 1949 deficit figure which hit the capital with a dull thud late yesterday would be the last of its kind. They predicted the 1950 fiscal year spending by 5 to 10 per cent.

"We must balance the budget," said Sen. Homer Ferguson, (R-Mich.), "notwithstanding the president's vested interest in past errors. I think the deficit figure demonstrates that the opinion of congress that we are not in an inflationary period is true."

System Devised to Handle Cash College Funds

Little Rock, July 2 — (AP) — A control system for cash funds used by state-supported colleges has been set up with approval of the colleges.

State Comptroller Lee Ros Beasley, who devised the system, said that all cash funds will first be deposited in a master control account at the particular institution, which will indicate the source of the money.

From this account, the funds will be transferred to individual accounts. The comptroller will receive monthly itemized statements of the control account. Expenditures will be cleared through the comptroller's office.

State funds and moneys received by institutions from other than legislative appropriations were much discussed in the 1949 legislature. Since then the Pulaski chancery court has upheld their legality. An appeal is pending in the Supreme court.

Minister Learning to Fly, Injured in a Crash

Siloam Springs, July 1 — (AP) — A minister learning to fly was injured seriously in the crash of a biplane near here yesterday.

The Rev. Harvey Beasley, pastor of the Christian church here, suffered leg, foot and arm fractures on his right side. His condition was described as serious but not critical at a Tulsa, Okla., hospital today.

Bulgarian Premier Dies in Moscow

By The Associated Press
The Communist premier of Bulgaria, Georgi Dimitroff, died of diabetes today in a Moscow sanatorium, Moscow radio reported.

The official Moscow announcement named Dimitroff as the standing leader of the international working class movement. High Soviet authorities expressed profound grief.

Dimitroff was the chief defendant in the Berlin Reichstag fire trial in 1933. He was a powerful strength to Stalin in the communist movement in eastern European countries. When he left Bulgaria in April to go to the Moscow sanatorium, Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Vassil Kolaroff took over the leadership of Bulgaria.

The heavy hand of the Czech Communist government moved further to stifle the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Czechoslovakia. The government warned foreign diplomats not to make "unauthorized trips into largely Roman Catholic Slovakia, where there have been bloody clashes between zealous churchmen and Communist officials lately.

This is a weekend of religious holidays and the government sponsored Catholic action organization is moving in to take over some of the activities. There will be Catholic pilgrimages and celebrations honoring the missionaries, Sts. Cyril and Methodius and the Monk St. Procop.

Rev. Josef Plojhar, a priest who is health minister in the Communist government, will deliver an address at Stranice. Moravia. Thousands of Communist adherents will make the pilgrimage. The government apparently is sponsoring a wide variety of church affairs now.

The education minister has been very active of late closing down a set of religious and Catholic church publications.

The Communist-sponsored Catholic action wants to make a good showing over the weekend and Prague informants said Red headquarters is even paying the affairs of those who will make the pilgrimages.

There will be an attraction for Protestants, too. Monday the nation marks the anniversary of the burning at the stake of John Huss in 1415.

John J. McCloy, the new American high commissioner in Germany, arrived in Berlin today to assume his duties. He is the first civilian to run the U. S. occupation zone, replacing as governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay. He arrived here by a train from the West. Freight and elevated trains began running once more after a long railway strike.

An airliner crashed in west Australia killing 18 persons. The craft was en route from Perth to Darwin and had been landing.

Princeton educated Paul Van Zeeland was reported today in Brussels to be trying to form a pro-royalist government which would call King Leopold back to the throne. Van Zeeland, a former premier, is a Christian socialist. His party won the most votes in last Sunday's election but does not have a clear majority in parliament.

Communist officials in Shanghai said the United States planes dropped two bombs in the southwestern suburbs of the city. A government spokesman said there were no casualties nor significant damage.

Dr. Brents Joins Local Optometry Firm

Dr. Harold M. Brents, optometrist, is now associated with Dr. Emmet Thompson of this city. It was announced by Dr. Thompson today. Dr. Brents was successful in passing the Arkansas State Board Examination in Optometry in April, after having finished a five-year course of study at Northern Illinois College of Optometry, Chicago.

A native of Conway County, Dr. Brents was graduated from Morrilton High School in 1941. He entered the U. S. Army Air Forces, serving three and one-half years in American, Asiatic-Pacific and European theaters of operations. While serving his tour of duty with the 20th Air Force in the Pacific he was awarded the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and two campaign stars.

After the war, while participating in an Army Air Force show at Copeland, Denmark, the crew which he was a member had an honor of being presented to the King and Queen of Denmark.

Dr. Brents and his wife, now reside in Hope on South Main Street.

Plans have been completed by Prescott's own National Guard Unit, Company "C" 153rd Infantry, for their Open House and Banquet Tuesday evening, July 5.

The program is scheduled to get under way at 7:30 at the National Guard Armory. Everyone is invited to attend and special emphasis extended to parents to participate in this program.

The Newly appointed Forestry, Soil and Pasture Conservation committee of the Prescott chamber of commerce met last week to outline plans for its program of work for the coming year. The following are members of the committee:

Claude Price, Chairman; J. M. Stripling, D. K. Bemis, Floyd Hamm, G. E. Tanner, J. V. McMahon, and Dock Kizer.

The purpose of the tour will be to illustrate the importance of proper pasture improvement methods and to show by demonstration the value gain in dollars to the individual farmers who have practiced a properly managed pasture program. The committee plans to visit the farms of Corbett, Hale, Dock Kizer, Ed Bryson, Leland Taylor, and C. E. Overstreet.

The group will promptly leave the chamber of commerce building at 1:15 p. m. in order to return early enough to permit the farmers to arrive at their home early in the afternoon.

The Chamber of Commerce announced today that the Tourist Court and Information course which was to have been presented recently in conjunction with the State Department of vocational education, distributive division and with the co-operation of Prescott school system has been re-scheduled for Tuesday, July 5.

The course will for three days and class schedules will be determined Thursday afternoon when Milburn Adams, representing the Division of Vocational Education will meet with a special committee appointed to work with him. This course is offered free through the co-operative efforts of the above organizations.

Fred Hymen, chairman of the Retail Merchants committee, called a special meeting of the merchants Tuesday June 28, at 9 a. m. in City Hall to discuss a program whereby more support can be offered by the merchants and the people of Prescott to Company "C" of the 153rd Infantry, Captain Sam Vick Scott, Commanding officer of the company, appeared on the program and outlined the importance of the National Guard unit to the community. The educational courses it presents to the young men who are members

Two Held for Questioning in Burglary

El Dorado, July 1 — (P) — Union county authorities are holding two men for questioning in connection with burglaries, forgery and car theft in four states.

They are Robert Davis, 28, of Portola, Calif., who was arrested here Wednesday night, and W. O. Baskin, about 37, former Hot Springs, Ark., cab driver arrested in Hot Springs last night.

Sheriff O. E. Bishop, who was bringing Baskin here from Hot Springs today, said the two were of the company and the over all opportunities it offers to those who are prospective enlistees.

As an incentive to the present membership of the unit to increase the company's strength, a contest was presented to the members of Company "C" at drill night, Tuesday, June 28. Each man who recruits four members will be paid a total of $10 for the four members or $2.50 per person. Any man who recruits more than four members will be paid a dollar per person over and above the $10 he receives for the first four men he recruits.

A man must recruit four members in order to be eligible for the $10 cash prize. There is no limit for the number of recruits a man may enlist and it is anticipated that approximately 25 or 30 prospective enlistees are available in the immediate vicinity of Prescott. The contest will close July 30.

Mr. Rymer pointed out to those present the importance of having Company "C" fill their quota of 25000 active enlistees as represented by a good industrial payroll. If the company could maintain a full roster it would mean approximately $40,000 annual income to this area.

The following merchants were present at the meeting and offered their support in this contest: Homer Ward, Burrell Whitmarsh, E. B. Bryson, Vernon Buchanan, T. G. Kline, Roy Loomis, J. C. Stripling, A. V. Bann, W. C. Reeves, Phil Foster, Carl Dalrymple, A. W. Evans, Bill Ward, John Darrough, J. V. Fore, Fred Rymer, J. E. Osburne, W. C. Wooley, Cliff Yancey, Leon Garrett, Dick Stewart, and Don Cayton.

England's Aim Is Creation of Unified Fleet for Defense Against All Aggression

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

England's historic Penance bay is the scene of a naval experiment which is calculated to result in the creation of a unified Western European fleet for defense against aggression.

British, French and Dutch men-of-war are massed in the bay, while smaller Belgian warships are engaged in separate maneuvers with British vessels in neighboring waters.

It is the beginning of an effort to coordinate the widely varying methods of these fleets so that they can work as one.

That's far from being as easy as it sounds. These navies are as individualistic as are the men who sail and fight them. Their various customs and methods of operation are developments of many centuries. The different languages in themselves are a hazard for coordination.

The very idea of such a submerging of identities probably would have brought shudders to that great sea-master Admiral Lord Nelson, whose spirit paces the deck of every British naval ship into this day. Yet the four navies are setting about the job in deadly earnest.

Of course this isn't the first time the British, French and Dutch warships have operated together after a fashion, for they joined with American ships to form the Allied eastern fleet based on Ceylon during the late war. However, this association served to emphasize the differences and consequent difficulties of combined operations. Even their all important inter-communications at times got so gummed up, because of the differences of language and customs, as to be most disconcerting.

My colleague Charles Grumich, who is an old sea-dog by virtue of having been with the Allied navy in the Far East during the war, tells me the consensus of naval officers concerned was that there were a good many rough spots in the operations of the combined fleets. By way of illustration Grumich says:

"This fleet made a series of 'club runs', as they called them, going out once a month to lay barrages and carrier air-strikes on the Anadaman and Nicobar Islands and Sumatra and Java.

"Arrival of the U.S. Saratoga, a rather ungainly old carrier from the Pacific, led to a lot of celebrating. The British were so happy that they changed over to American signal flags, not knowing that the Saratoga had changed over to British signal flags. They had a helluva time making signals for a while.

"The real snafu came when the French battle-wagon Richelieu joined the fleet. Saratoga signaled over, asking if there was anything Richelieu needed. The French came back with a request for 1,000 brassieres and the American boats were just about to swim over to see why when a French linguist discovered that that's what the French call life-jackets."

Well, that's a page out of the past. Penance bay may well be seeing the beginning of a new era in allied naval coordination.

Mystery of Shooting May Be Cleared Up

Little Rock, July 1 — (P) — A four-month-old mystery of the death of a boy and his dog may be cleared soon when 12-year-old Leon Tubb regains his speech.

The boy has been unable to talk since he was found with a bullet in his brain in a wooded area near Berryville, Ark., near the bodies of his small brother and their dog last March 7.

Officials at the children's convalescent center at Jacksonville say that Leon, whose right side is paralyzed, cannot talk as yet but is progressing with sign language.

Officers investigating the shooting have hit a blank wall in the case, and have been waiting to question Leon to find out "just what happened."

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF HOPE AND HEMPSTEAD COUNTY DO YOU KNOW THAT:

Olie's Dairy is under the strict supervision of State and local HEALTH Authorities, and that the milk meets all the requirements?

Do you know that Olie's Dairy has a Payroll of Approximately $25,000 per year and another $1,000 per month overhead that is spent in Hope?

Did you know that Olie's Dairy pays the farmers of this community approximately $100,000 each year for milk, and this money is spent in Hope?

WILL OTHER DAIRIES

BUILD OR OPERATE A PLANT IN HOPE, OR WILL THEY JUST OPERATE A TRUCK FROM OUT OF TOWN?

WILL THEY BUY MILK FROM THE MILK PRODUCERS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY?

WHAT WILL THEY OFFER IN RETURN FOR YOUR PATRONAGE?

We the Milk producers of Hempstead County feel that since Olie's Dairy is a Home owned and operated dairy that they should be given first consideration over any other dairy coming to Hope.

We feel that it will be to the best interest of the farmers in Hempstead County, for the people of Hope and Hempstead County to support Olie's Dairy 100%. Be sure and think about this before you make any changes.

Ministers Tell of Floggings

Ashtand, Ala., July 1. —(UP)—Two ministers today described a "whipping ground" in an abandoned mine near there where masked terrorists have reportedly flogged between 25 and 30 persons recently.

Four of the victims—one white man and three Negroes—have sold their belongings and fled this area in fear for their lives, the ministers said.

The declared that "lawlessness is running wild in Clay county, a section about 70 miles east of Birmingham where recent mob violence aroused the Alabama legislature into passing a law to unmask hooded orders.

Gov. James E. Folsom sent State Public Safety Director Bankhead Bates and three of his investigators to Clay county last night to dig into the reports of floggings.

Sheriff Rhet Owens, "there is no evidence of dereliction of duty by the Clay county officers."

The Rev. Luther Brown and the Rev. Frank H. Ledford said they heard the stories of terrorism in the "torture pit" from the victims themselves.

The two men said they investigated the abandoned graphite mine and found blood-stained fragments of clothing, switches, a bloody grass rope and a playing card perforated by shotgun pellets in the pocket of a bloody shirt.

"I could not believe with my own eyes the horror of what might have taken place," Brown said. Ledford said they were making public their investigations in hope of gaining enough publicity to halt the lawlessness.

The four victims who were terrorized into leaving Clay county included Willie Horton, 33-year-old Negro war veteran who operated a cafe in Ashtand.

The wearer of five battlestars, a presidential citation, the purple heart and a good conduct ribbon, Horton said he and his brother were kidnapped by a 20-car caravan of masked men.

They were beaten with hickory of Fayetteville will be the guest of her mother Mrs. L. K. Dildy for the fourth-of-July holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Pilkinton of Ft. Smith were Friday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Pilkinton.

Mrs. I. L. Pilkinton is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Hargis, Mr. Hargis and children in Morrilton.

Mrs. Marshall Hendrix of Little Rock will arrive Saturday night to spend the fourth of July holidays with Miss Mary Frances Irvin.

Miss Helen Downs of Magnolia arrived Saturday to spend the fourth of July holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Downs.

sticks, blackjacks and a pistol barrel, Horton said, and kicked in the face and body.

Another Negro cafe operator, Allen Heard, 32, said three masked men shot up his place after he was unable to give them information they wanted about another Negro.

The white men, a herb doctor named J. J. Gavens, said two carloads of unmasked men lured him from his home on the pretext that a sick woman needed his help.

Then they took him away and beat him, he said. He was unable to identify any of his attackers.

His wife verified the story. She said she emptied a revolver at the attackers when they forced her husband away and they returned the fire. She called a deputy sheriff and they found her husband, all-night search.

Wandering around dazed, after an hour's search, she found her husband. The ministers said they have turned over their evidence to four state investigators working in the area and to Sheriff Rhet Owens, who said he is working "in full cooperation" with the state agents.

Meanwhile, in Montgomery, the house judiciary committee turned down Attorney General A. A. Carmichael's request to draw up a bill to outlaw the Ku Klux Klan.

The committee said no proof had been furnished to indicate that the Klan as an organization, was responsible for hooded terrorism in the state.

The committee earlier approved unanimously the anti-masking bill which was subsequently passed and signed into law by Gov. James E. Folsom.

The Story: Mike McTaggart, a mining engineer, in spite of his ideas about women mine operators, has agreed to help beautiful Cory Parnell find out why the mine she inherited from her father is not producing high-grade ore. Mike makes secret samplings and finds out that it disagrees with company figures. He tells Cory that the ore must be spirited out of the mine somehow and marketed through a dummy mine nearby. He sets out to find the dummy. He visits several places and finds that there is suspicious secrecy at the Argus Mine, but this evidence is not conclusive. After visiting nearly every outfit near the Black Angel, Cory's mine, Mike returns. It occurs to him that while he's investigating at the mine, the gang stealing the ore wouldn't operate — they'd sit tight.

The humor of the situation struck me as I drove back to the boarding house. If the gang couldn't afford to pinch Cory Parnell's high-grade ore while I was around, then everything mined would go into the mill.

And if that happened, the mill feed would jump to $15 a ton and everything would be lovely.

I trimmed to myself at the thought of the fancy explanations that would be forthcoming.

Next morning, Friday, I dropped into Cory's office early.

"When do you get smelter reports on your concentrates?" I asked.

She pointed to a fat unopened envelope on her desk. "That will be for Wednesday's car."

I did a little figuring. "Then, for the car that rolled yesterday — that was Thursday — you'll get the figures tomorrow."

She nodded.

"Could we get them today?"

"We studied for a moment. 'If I phoned long distance this afternoon, I guess we could. But, why so curious? Getting the news early won't make it any better.'"

"I'll be good news."

"What makes you think so?"

"According to your mill-flow sheets it has to be. The $15 ore I sampled on Tuesday night was mined on Wednesday. It was milled and concentrated on Wednesday night, dried, loaded, and shipped on Thursday. Q. E. D. Instead of running forty-five or fifty trucks to the ton, those concentrates'll run a hundred and fifty-three thousand bucks instead of one thousand and as long as I'm around the mine all your ears will be that way."

She wasn't buying. "There's a hole in your argument, Mike. If the car values jumped like that it would look suspicious."

"Oh, there'll be explanations," I said, "lots of 'em — the pay-streak must have widened unexpectedly, the crew must have struck a rich pocket, and so on."

DOROTHY DIX Why Dread Old Age?

The other day a woman of 70 astonished a group of her friends by saying:

"You don't know how I am enjoying my age. I am literally having the time of my life."

The exclamations of amazement and disbelief that greeted this statement, she replied: "Oh, I know you think this can't be true, but I must be right, and we use up our strength and energy in fighting it off, but what it is a time of peace and quiet happiness such as we have never enjoyed before. It is like arriving at the end of a long, hard journey. It is like sitting down in the twilight after the streets and rush of the day's work is over and folding your hands and having time to think and philosophize and get a perspective on things and trying to find out what they were all about."

"We are so full of fears when we are young and so worried about little things! I can remember how when I was a young girl, I used to keep myself in a state of chronic agitation almost over my anxiety over having dates, only we called them beaux then, and over whether I would be asked to every party and if I'd have plenty of cut-ins at the dances and if my frocks would be as pretty as the other girls' and if I missed getting to go to a ball I went down into the seventh hell of despair and felt that there was no use in trying to live on in a world that was so filled with disappointments."

"But I am immune from all of that suffering now, because life has taught me that most of the things I was afraid of happening never happened at all, and if they did happen, they weren't half so bad as I thought they were going to be and that if I can't do the one pator. Only the older a free. When you are young you are bound by a million conventions and policies and social necessities and restrictions. You have to run with the herd and do the things that it is expedient to do and generally keep up with the procession, but when you are old you can snap your fingers in Mrs. Grundy's face and do exactly as you please.

"You dress as you choose, and if you want to wear red flannel underwear and flat-heeled shoes, it is nobody's business. If you are a tramp when you are old, you are merely individual, and you can get a reputation of being a smart dresser on a tenth of the money it costs a young woman, because everybody notices it when an old woman wears Paris frocks and hats that don't look as if they belong to the 1820 era.

"And blessed by Allah for all of his mercies to us, when you are old and don't have to follow all the new fads and take up with the new theories and change your politics and religion and try to improve yourself for fear you will be thought a back number. Because you already are a back number. Because you already are a back number and that gives you the privilege of indulging your tastes and sticking to your old carved mahogany and having pictures on your walls and listening to the old operas instead of having to go modernistic and jazzy and sexy. And because you have already read the improving books, you are free to go to musical comedies and like mystery stories.

"And above all, when you are old you don't have to go places that bore you now, endure the people who get on your nerves, and has to keep in the running and cultivate those who may advance your fortunes, but when you are old and you have no ax to grind, and you can just consult your own tastes and inclinations about where you go and gather about you only the people who are congenial and entertaining.

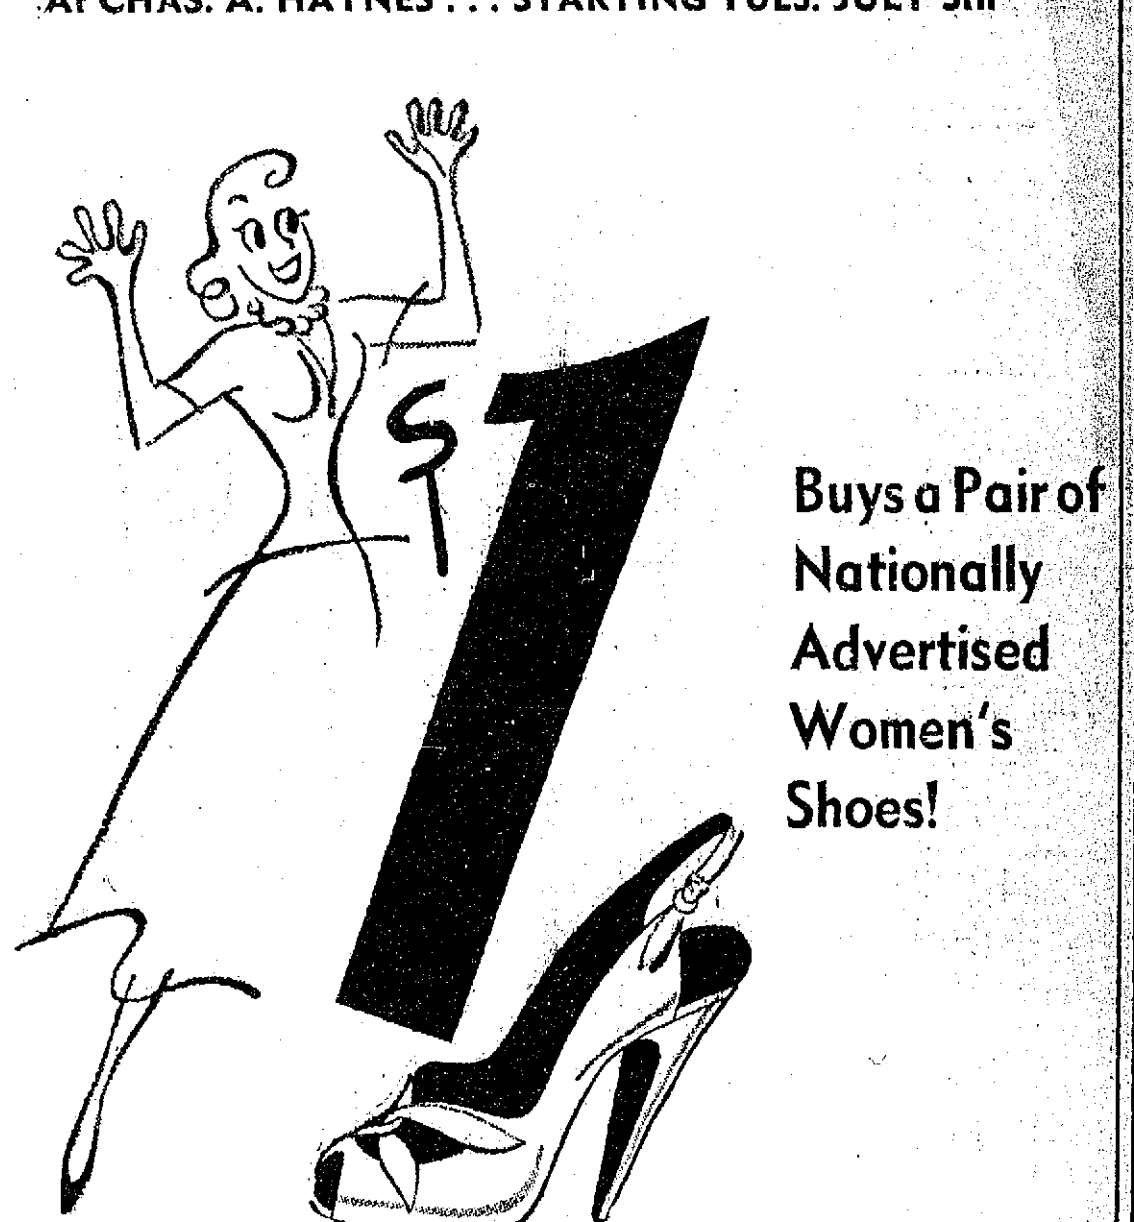

"But the chief value of age is that it is the most perfect shield in the world and excuses you for everything you want to do or don't want to do. Especially for a woman. For when a woman is old she is old enough to do anything with out criticism if she wants to do it, but if she doesn't want to do it, she is too old to do it. I for instance, am old enough to go around the world alone, but I am too old to be bothered taking care of my grandchildren."

"Believe me, age is such a gift. It always surprises me that women don't get in on it earlier in life, if you get what I mean."

Legion Bests Mineral Springs as Temper Flare

By George Dobson
Tempers flared high at Fair park last night when the Hope Lions defeated Mineral Springs 9-6. The win gave the locals nine wins against six defeats for the season.
Charles Gough started on the mound for the locals but had to give way to Denny Ross in the 7th inning when the Flyers began hitting. Francis Bell and Bub Diddy shared pitching duties for Mineral Springs with Bell getting charged with the loss, and Gough the victory.

eight when Lonnie Bell came to the platter with the bases full, and on a two-two pitch, took a cut at the ball, but was hit in the stomach. "That's the last time,"

Bell started to first, but Cornelius called him out since he was a third stainer. Bell let his temper fly too much, and was put out of the game by some five or six minutes because of the argument, and police had to come in onto the field to break the smooth thing over. Rube struck out Eugene Bell, and made Peck ground out short to first on a close play that also brought up some more words between players and ump. Frank Hale had his box of whistles again last night as he singled his first three trips to the first base, eight straight hits in his fourth appearance. Hale was an easy out, short to first

Bob White continued to pole long balls as he got himself another round tripper, this one over the night-center field wall.

Hope got off to a fast start in the first inning with an unearned run, and then managed to score four times in the third frame that saw Francis Bell leave the game. Diddy came on, but the Legions treated him with no respect in the fourth and fifth when they tallied two runs in each inning. After that, Diddy was the show.

Several Legions exits

Mineral Springs got their first run in the fifth inning, and then added three in the sixth, and two in the seventh before Ross was able to stop them. The Flyers loaded the bases in the eighth and ninth, but were unable to score as Ross struck out Walters to end the game.

Monday night, the locals take on the 'Temics' from Texarkana in a fourth of July battle.
